Whirls in Crazy Dance Over Minnesota, Wisconsin

At Least 13 Persons Had Been Killed, Nearly 100 Injured and Property Damage $1,000,000

Minneapolis, April 6.—(UP)—A black-robed tornado whirled in a crazy dance over Minnesota and Wisconsin Friday night and when the crushing dips and turns were done it was learned today that at least 13 persons had been killed, nearly 100 injured and property damaged to the extent of $1,000,000.

The fitful, terrible dancer first touched Worthington, Minn., where several small farm buildings were destroyed and then bounded with intensified force up and around the twin cities and northeast into Wisconsin.

In its wake was a mass of twisted or demolished buildings, uprooted trees, broken communication lines, dead livestock and levelled farms.

Hospitals in a half dozen cities cared today for the injured several of which were given slight chances for recovery.

Eye-witnesses variously described the twister as "a huge black claw which reached out of the sky and dug at the earth" and "a huge mass of black smoke which roared and belled."

Almost every destructive element accompanied the tornado. In several instances houses wrecked by the wind were fired. Hailstones "the size of hen's eggs beat down on Wayzata, a pounding rain swept over other parts of the storm area and Kenneth Helgren, a 14 year old Minneapolis boy was badly burned by electricity when he came in contact with a fallen wire."

Rural sections of the two states were hardest hit by the destructive winds particularly those sections about Forest Lake, Minnesota and Rice Lake, Barron, and Shell Lake, Wisconsin.

It was near Shell Lake that the three Pittman children were crushed to death. Douglas was almost instantly killed while his sister Dorothy and his cousin Lawrence died a short time later from their injuries.

Two rural Minnesota schools were completely demolished although no pupils were injured since the storm struck some two hours after classes had been dismissed.

The extent of the damage done by the tornado was not at once known since scores of toll lines and telegraph wires in the two states were knocked down.

Several of the injured reported that they had been pinned beneath the wreckage of buildings or trees as long as an hour before they were found by rescue parties.

Minneapolis, which like St. Paul, escaped the wrath of the storm, sent police and fire squads into the outlying districts and within two hours from the time they were summoned they had carried approximately 25 injured to city hospitals.

Approximately 50 farms suffered from the fury of the twister before its force was spent in the hills of Wisconsin. Many of the victims said that they were milking their cows when the tornado lashed across the fields.

Louis Wenzel, nine miles west of Hugo, Minn., was one of the "milkers," who had no time to escape.

"I heard the thing coming," he said, "so I got up from the stool to see what was up. Before I reached the door the twister struck the barn and the cow I had been milking was literally blown through the wall."

Katie Frischman, who lives on a farm near New Brighton, Minn., said she got a good view of the funnel-shaped cloud as it bore down upon her.

"I saw it coming," she said, "and it seemed that the whole southwest end of Minnesota was about to be piled right on top of us."

"It made a hissing sound which grew louder and louder as it drew near. Then it took on all the beautiful colors of the rainbow, bright red, white, grey and then they all blended into a black, hissing, monster ready to wipe us off the face of the earth."

Katie escaped with minor injuries.

Minneapolis, April 6.—The list of dead and seriously injured from the storm that swept through sections of Minnesota and Wisconsin Friday night follows:

The known dead were:

Andrew Hanson, 42, North Minneapolis.

John Lundgren, 41, Forest Lake, Minn.

C. F. Bryan, 62, Taylor Falls, Minn.

Miss Martha Raawe, 26, near Rice Lake, Wis.

Mrs. Louis Reed, 50, near Rice Lake.

Douglas and Dorothy Pittman, children of Richard Pittman, Reeves, Wis.

Lawrence Pittman, cousin of Douglas and Dorothy, Reeves, Wis.

John Salmon, Clayton, Wis.

Frank Olson, 56, Forest Lake.

Mrs. John Paulson, 82, of near Barron.

A. G. Anderson, Glenwood City, Wis.

Victor Christensen, Minneapolis.

Victor Christensen was killed five miles west of Minneapolis when an automobile in which he was riding with Arthur Flamont was crashed from the highway by the wind. Flamont was so seriously injured that he was unable to tell what had occurred.

In virtually every case the killed or injured were crushed in their own demolished homes or were struck by flying debris as they scurried for shelter.

The seriously injured included:

Louis Reed, Rice Lake, Wis.

Mrs. Charles Skog, Forest Lake, Minn.

Martin Hockstra, Forest Lake.

Leonard Thullner, 42, Minneapolis.

Louisa Anna Thullner, 4, Minneapolis.

Mrs. John Paulson, near Barron, Wis. (not expected to live).

Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Connor, Shell Lake, Wis.

Charles Hanson, Barron.

Mrs. Nauer, Barron.

Frank Olson, Chicago City, Minn.

Louis Larson, North Minneapolis.

St. Paul, April 6.—One dead and considerable property damage in the vicinity of Little Rock, northeast of here, near the Minnesota line, was the result of last night's tornado, a check showed today.

George Tuin, 40, was killed when he was hit by the roof of a chicken house which had been torn loose by the wind. The storm struck the district late yesterday.

Forest City, Ia., April 6.—The farm home of Andrew Teitan, five miles east of Forest City, was in ruins today, and Teitan, his wife, their son Ray, and their daughter Geneva, were in a hospital here suffering from injuries received last yesterday when a terrific wind storm swept their farm.

12 YEARS AGO NATION HURLED INTO WORLD WAR

SENATE RESOLUTION ADOPTED BY THE HOUSE AT 1:30 A. M.

VOTE STOOD 373 TO 50. A SMALL BAND OF MEN PROTESTING ACTION

By PAUL R. MALLON (United Press Staff Correspondent) (Copyright, 1929, by United Press)

Washington, April 6.—In the warm stale air of the house of representatives at 1:30 A. M., twelve years ago today the senate resolution hurling this nation into the world war was passed 373 to 50 over the protests of a small band of men who brought social ostracism upon themselves for a time because of their refusal to join the general clamor.

Earlier the senate had passed the resolution 82 to 6 against the advice of an even smaller and more hated group led by the late Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, who walked alone in senate corridors for many years thereafter because of the speech he made against the war declaration.

Today with 65,000 American soldiers in battlefield graves and thousands more maimed in hospitals, with most of the wartime hatreds forgotten, there are but eight of the 56 who voted against war left in congress to tell the tale—survivors of bitter years during which they were hissed as "pro-Germans," and some times denied the friendly association of their fellow citizens.

The sole senate survivor is Sen. George W. Norris of Nebraska, who in a reminiscent statement today said he had no regrets and that he would cast his vote exactly the same if he had it to do over again.

His view was seconded by Representative Fred A. Britten of Illinois, chairman of the house naval committee, who said the world has not been made safe for democracy and that the war was fought in vain. He predicts it will take 500 years to overcome the disaster of the war.

Britten explained his vote against war based on the following premises: "First, we were entirely unprepared to enter that world carnage thanks to pacifist propaganda which had wrecked all well considered plans for our national defense.

"Thousands were herded on ships with but few weeks of training. Disease followed. Poor equipment was complained of everywhere. American aviation material was a farce.

"And now with the passing of 12 years since our entrance into that awful waste, I find that the war has been fought in vain. The world has not been made safe for democracy. The right of self-determination and free speech does not prevail.

"Europe has more military men under arms today than ever before in pre-war days. Hatreds and jealousies exist everywhere on the continent while no two nations have confidence in each other. Diplomacy and deceit go hand in hand.

"Tax burdens and reparations are frightful and no one is satisfied. It will take 500 years of peace to overcome the disasters of the world war, and I repeat it has been fought in vain."

FATHER OF SEVEN CHILDREN HANGED HIMSELF WITH LINE

Muskegon, Mich., April 6.—(UP)—Using a piece of clothes line he obtained while visiting his seven children at their home yesterday, Alex Zack, the first man to be sentenced as a habitual criminal under the amended Michigan criminal code, hanged himself in his cell in the Muskegon county jail today.

Zack's body was found by a deputy sheriff this morning. He had been sentenced by Judge John Vanderwerp to serve from ten to 15 years in the Michigan state prison at Jackson.

Zack was convicted four times of violating the prohibition law. Following his fourth conviction last December he was saved from life imprisonment under the provisions of the old criminal code when Prosecutor Harold H. Smedley refused to prefer habitual criminal charges against him.

TWO LITTLE FALLS MEN INSTANTLY KILLED BY TRAIN

Little Falls, April 6.—(UP)—John Machefney and Clifford Riddon, both of Little Falls were almost instantly killed here today when their automobile was struck by a Northern Pacific freight train.

The automobile in which the two young married men were riding as the train struck it on a crossing was demolished.

One car on the freight train was derailed by the impact.

FEDERAL ARMY DRIVING REBELS TO HILL COUNTRY

INSURGENTS WERE DEFEATED AT JIMINEZ, BLASTED TO SHREDS AT REFORMA

NOW TRYING TO REORGANIZE THEIR FORCES IN THE NORTH

By G. F. FINE (United Press Staff Correspondent) Mexico City, April 6.—Slowly, but with steady and devastating blows, the federal army appeared today to be driving the shattered insurgent forces towards the wild hill country of Sonora and the United States border.

Government reports that the rebels defeated at Jimenez and blasted to shreds at Reforma, were attempting to reorganize their forces in the north asserted that the "military problem in the state of Chihuahua no longer exists."

Although there were indications that the rebel leaders had planned to offer resistance at Chihuahua City, minister of war Plutarco Elias Calles informed the government that the routed troops under Gen. J. Gonzales Escobar were preparing to join the rebels under Gen. Francisco Manzo and Gen. Fauto Topete in Sonora—where most of Mexico's rebellions have originated and which is protected by mighty natural defenses.

Announcements at the presidential office here, however, drew a picture which showed only a desperate, whipped section of the insurgent armies which a month ago stretched out long and powerful lines to threaten the capital from the north, from the west and from eastern Vera Cruz.

In addition to the Sonora area and the reportedly wrecked forces in Chihuahua, including those at Juarez, there remained only the Cristero disturbances in Guanajuato and Zacatecas states. General Calles has ordered 5,000 reserve troops to combat the apparently unorganized resistance there.

The minister of war, whose severe but unhesitating action in the present rebellion is in keeping with the military record, told President Emilio Portes Gil that he believed loyalists would be able to occupy Chihuahua City, Juarez and other border points without resistance.

"In contrast to the rebel demoralization," he added in his message, "the government forces are intact, casualties are insignificant and the morale is greatly improved."

W. J. ARHER IS NAMED PROBATE JUDGE

St. Paul, April 6.—(UP)—W. J. Archer, Virginia, today was appointed as probate judge of St. Louis county. The appointment was made by Governor Theodore Christianson, who at the same time announced the resignation of Judge S. W. Gilpin.

FIRE AT NIGHT CLUB DOES $50,000 DAMAGE

Chicago, April 6.—(UP)—A fire that had smoldered all night in the Bal Tabarin, an exclusive night club on the roof of the Sherman hotel annex, broke into flames today and caused $50,000 damage.

Congressman Martin Of Louisiana Dies

Washington, April 6.—(UP)—Congressman W. P. Martin, 63 of Thibodaux, La., died in a hospital here today following an operation yesterday for bladder trouble.

AMERICAN CAVALRYMAN IS WOUNDED IN CLASH

BURGLAR PROOF SAFE IS ROBBED AT MACOMB, ILL.

Macomb, Ill., April 6.—(UP)—A new burglar proof safe at the Macomb postoffice was robbed of $21,000 during the night, post-office authorities reported to police today.

The new safe, equipped with especially designed tear bombs, had been entered by means of an acetylene torch which was found on the floor. Explosion of the tear bombs had been avoided by cutting a four-inch square around the combination on the outer and inner door.

LINER PARIS GOES AGROUND OFF BROOKLYN

AT BAY RIDGE AS SHE STEAMED TO OPEN SEA ON REGULAR VOYAGE

UNLIKELY VESSEL CAN BE GOT TEN LOOSE BEFORE LATE AFTERNOON

New York, April 6.—(UP)—The liner Paris, carrying 115 first class passengers, went aground off Bay Ridge, off Brooklyn, early today as she was steaming down the bay to open sea for her regular voyage to Plymouth and Havre.

Pilot boats were on the way to aid the French liner, but early reports said it was unlikely the vessel could be pulled free before late afternoon.

The Paris struck the mud flats near Owl Head buoy. The tide was falling, and Captain J. T. Ray found it impossible to move the ship under her own power.

The vessel was in no danger, it was said.

COL. LINDBERGH IS LEARNING SECRETS OR AGONIES OF GOLF

Mexico City, April 6.—(UP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who returned to the capital from Cuernavaca yesterday with his fiancée, Miss Anne Spencer Morrow and her mother and sister, is learning the secrets—and apparently the agonies—of golf, it was said today.

Although Lindbergh and his fiancée have been spending quiet days this week, the famous aviator was seen recently swinging a maulie in the patio at the American embassy. Miss Morrow plays golf and it was said Lindbergh was anxious to be able to accompany her on the links.

There was only one spectator present when Lindbergh tried his hand at golf practice at the embassy. The man who in the past has had time for little but aviation, swung at the ball four times and experienced the beginner's usual luck. He failed to touch it. The spectator withdrew.

The embassy mail has been cluttered with large batches of sentimental poetry since the flier returned here this week. Lindbergh has seen but one of the poems sent by admirers and dedicated to the affianced couple. It was said the poem caused him such acute pain that the subject had not been mentioned again.

Lindbergh and Miss Morrow have taken daily horseback and automobile rides. Lindbergh has been renting an automobile and driving it himself.

ENDS OLD GRUDGE IN FATAL SHOT

Fort Humphreys, Va., April 6.—(UP)—Sergeant John Doherty shot and killed Private Duane Morrison here today and then committed suicide by firing a shot into his head.

An old grudge between the pair was believed responsible for the tragedy. The shooting occurred in a hall. Doherty was from Greenwich, Conn., and Morrison from Muncie, Ala.

10TH CAVALRY HAS BRUSH WITH REBEL FORCES

INCIDENT OCCURRED SHORT DISTANCE EAST OF NACO, SONORA, MEXICO

JOHN FINEZEE, NEGRO, PRIVATE OF TROOP E, WAS SHOT THROUGH CHEST

Naco, Sonora, Mexico, April 6.—(UP)—A member of the Tenth United States Cavalry was wounded today when an American patrol exchanged shots with a party of Mexican revolutionary troops east of here.

The cavalry man, John Finezee, negro, a private of Troop E, was shot through the chest. His wound was not serious.

The skirmish followed the finding of a number of sacks of bombs on the American side of the international line and near a tunnel of the Southern Pacific railway.

The American patrol which located the explosives challenged a group of rebels nearby and the insurgents answered with a volley of shots, it was said.

Finezee fell wounded as his companions returned the fire and drove the Mexicans away.

It was presumed that the rebels intended to either blow up the train or the tracks on which federal reinforcements were being rushed here from El Paso.

Shortly after the brief skirmish between the Americans and Mexicans, the insurgents unsuccessfully launched an intense assault on the local garrison.

A Mexican woman and her small daughter were wounded in Naco, Ariz., as bullets crossed the line during this attack.

Scarcely a building on the American side escaped being struck by stray shots.

The rebels attacked from three sides while their airplanes dropped bombs on the federal garrison. Approximately 1,500 men took part in the assault, led by makeshift insurgent tanks.

The troops advanced to within 200 yards of the federal entrenchments and were repulsed after a bitter conflict.

Casualties appeared to be heavy as the federal poured machine gun and rifle fire into the rebel columns.

Just as the rebels retired, apparently to reform their lines, the troop train from El Paso arrived on the American side of the line with 300 federal soldiers, once interned in El Paso, Texas, after Juarez fell to the insurgents.

After a brief delay this detachment crossed the border and combined with the federal troops in the trenches.

TOUCH OF CAUSTIC HUMOR SHOWS UPP IN BRIBERY TRIAL

Minneapolis, April 6.—(UP)—A touch of caustic humor was injected into the bribery trial of Alderman Edward J. Sweeney here when Fred A. Maurer, a former fellow councilman now at Stillwater penitentiary and the chief state witness in the present trial, invited Sweeney to "come on down."

Maurer sentenced to two years imprisonment upon his plea of guilty to the acceptance of a bribe, met Sweeney as he entered the Hennepin county district court room to tell what he knew of graft on the city council.

"How are you getting along down there, Fred?" Sweeney asked, as he and the prisoner shook hands.

"Fine," Maurer answered with a strange grin, "you had better come down."

Maurer then climbed up on the witness stand and testified that he and Sweeney had several times divided bribe money.

Sweeney is charged specifically with the acceptance of a $405 bribe in connection with the purchase of street department equipment.

The cavalry man, John Finezee, negro, a private of Troop E, was shot through the chest. His wound was not serious.

The skirmish followed the finding of a number of sacks of bombs on the American side of the international line and near a tunnel of the Southern Pacific railway.

The American patrol which located the explosives challenged a group of rebels nearby and the insurgents answered with a volley of shots, it was said.

Finezee fell wounded as his companions returned the fire and drove the Mexicans away.

It was presumed that the rebels intended to either blow up the train or the tracks on which federal reinforcements were being rushed here from El Paso.

Shortly after the brief skirmish between the Americans and Mexicans, the insurgents unsuccessfully launched an intense assault on the local garrison.

A Mexican woman and her small daughter were wounded in Naco, Ariz., as bullets crossed the line during this attack.

Scarcely a building on the American side escaped being struck by stray shots.

The rebels attacked from three sides while their airplanes dropped bombs on the federal garrison. Approximately 1,500 men took part in the assault, led by makeshift insurgent tanks.

The troops advanced to within 200 yards of the federal entrenchments and were repulsed after a bitter conflict.

Casualties appeared to be heavy as the federals poured machine gun and rifle fire into the rebel columns.

Just as the rebels retired, apparently to reform their lines, the troop train from El Paso arrived on the American side of the line with 300 federals, once interned in El Paso, Texas, after Juarez fell to the insurgents.

After a brief delay this detachment crossed the border and combined with the federal troops in the trenches.

TOUCH OF CAUSTIC HUMOR SHOWS UPP IN BRIBERY TRIAL

Minneapolis, April 6.—(UP)—A touch of caustic humor was injected into the bribery trial of Alderman Edward J. Sweeney here when Fred A. Maurer, a former fellow councilman now at Stillwater penitentiary and the chief state witness in the present trial, invited Sweeney to "come on down."

Maurer sentenced to two years imprisonment upon his plea of guilty to the acceptance of a bribe, met Sweeney as he entered the Hennepin county district court room to tell what he knew of graft on the city council.

"How are you getting along down there, Fred?" Sweeney asked, as he and the prisoner shook hands.

"Fine," Maurer answered with a strange grin, "you had better come down."

Maurer then climbed up on the witness stand and testified that he and Sweeney had several times divided bribe money.

Sweeney is charged specifically with the acceptance of a $405 bribe in connection with the purchase of street department equipment.

Arthur Hartmann String Quartet to Give Recital Sunday

Come Here After Completing Successful Season in the East

Histories pertaining to the members of the Arthur Hartmann Quartet to appear in a recital Sunday afternoon starting at 3:30 o'clock at the Elks hall under auspices of the Brainerd Musical club follow:

Arthur Hartmann
Mr. Hartmann began his career in Philadelphia as a child prodigy and by the time he had reached the age of twelve, had played the entire repertoire of the violin, on both sides of the Atlantic. The concertos of Saint-Saens and Godard were given by the young violinist, with the composers, in Paris; Beethoven with Hans Richter and so on. He has been heard in almost every part of the world and is widely known also for his compositions and transcriptions. Of the latter, over one hundred are published in this country.

GRAPHIC OUTLINES OF HISTORY

By D. E. WHITNEY

Roger Williams

Roger Williams was an ardent believer in freedom of religion, and to escape the laws of Massachusetts, fled to Rhode Island. Friendly with the Indians at Narragansett Bay, he was welcomed by them and started a settlement there in 1635 which he called Providence.

There is comfort in knowing that all details can be turned over to us with complete confidence. We assume all the responsibilities of the occasion.

alone, and they are played and recorded by Heifetz, Kreisler, Elman, Renee Chemet and other violinists. In Paris Arthur Hartmann played in recitals with Debussy and when he was twenty years of age, had his own string quartet in Berlin. Like several other leading violinists of today, Mr. Hartmann is forming this combination for the advancement of what he believes to be the greatest art of Music.

Nacum Benditzky

Born in Ukraina—Russia.
Began musical education ('cello) at the early age of seven years and studied in the St. Petersburg Conservatory in the 'cello class of the noted Professor Louis Abbiate.
At the age of sixteen filled the position of principal 'cellist with one of the symphony orchestras in Russia.

Later on continued his studies in Paris, France, with the famous Russian 'cellist, Joseph Press.

Concertized in the Orient and Central Europe and has been a member of various chamber music organizations abroad and in America since coming to this country in 1922.

Mitya Stillman

Mitya Stillman is a graduate of the Conservatory at Kiev, Russia, and was concert master of the Kiev Symphony Orchestra for four years. He was also a member of the Kiev String Quartet for five years. He studied the violin under J. Pulikovsky and composition under R. Gliere. Mr. Stillman came to this country in 1921 and soon distinguished himself by winning first prize in Detroit for his String Quartet.

Walter Edelstein

Walter Edelstein is a graduate of the Damrosch Institute of Musical Art, New York.

He was a pupil of the late Franz Kneisel from whom he received a thorough training in the standard chamber music literature. Mr. Edelstein also studied in Europe, receiving a diploma with honors from the Fontainebleau Conservatoire in France. He later concertized abroad and recently made his American debut in a New York recital at Aeolian Hall which called forth the unanimous praise of the New York critics.

Arthur Hartmann Quartet
Played ten appearances in greater New York, during season 1926-27; 1927-28.

Re-engaged, during three consecutive years for three concerts, each season, at the Brooklyn Academy.

The Arthur Hartmann Quartet has played at Yale, Harvard, Princeton and numerous other universities and colleges.

The program follows:
Part I
Quartet, F major, Opus 96 (American) Dvorak

Allegro.
Lento.
Finale.

Part II
Andante Cantabile... Tschakowsky
Serenade... Rachmaninoff-Hartmann

Part III
Quartet, C minor, Op. 18, No. 4 Beethoven

Allegro ma non tanto.
Scherzo.
Menuetto.
Allegro.

Histories pertaining to the members of the Arthur Hartmann Quartet to appear in a recital Sunday afternoon starting at 3:30 o'clock at the Elks hall under auspices of the Brainerd Musical club follow:

Arthur Hartmann
Mr. Hartmann began his career in Philadelphia as a child prodigy and by the time he had reached the age of twelve, had played the entire repertoire of the violin, on both sides of the Atlantic. The concertos of Saint-Saens and Godard were given by the young violinist, with the composers, in Paris; Beethoven with Hans Richter and so on. He has been heard in almost every part of the world and is widely known also for his compositions and transcriptions. Of the latter, over one hundred are published in this country.

alone, and they are played and recorded by Heifetz, Kreisler, Elman, Renee Chemet and other violinists.
In Paris Arthur Hartmann played in recitals with Debussy and when he was twenty years of age, had his own string quartet in Berlin. Like several other leading violinists of today, Mr. Hartmann is forming this combination for the advancement of what he believes to be the greatest art of Music.

Naoum Benditzky
Born in Ukraine—Russia.
Began musical education (cello) at the early age of seven years and studied in the St. Petersburg Conservatory in the cello class of the noted Professor Louis Abbiate.
At the age of sixteen filled the position of principal cellist with one of the symphony orchestras in Russia.

Later on continued his studies in Paris, France, with the famous Russian cellist, Joseph Press.
Concertized in the Orient and Central Europe and has been a member of various chamber music organizations abroad and in America since coming to this country in 1922.

Mitya Stillman
Mitya Stillman is a graduate of the Conservatory at Kiev, Russia, and was concert master of the Kiev Symphony Orchestra for four years. He was also a member of the Kiev String Quartet for five years. He studied the violin under J. Pulkovsky and composition under R. Gliere. Mr. Stillman came to this country in 1921 and soon distinguished himself by winning first prize in Detroit for his String Quartet.

Walter Edelstein
Walter Edelstein is a graduate of the Damrosch Institute of Musical Art, New York.

He was a pupil of the late Franz Kneisel from whom he received a thorough training in the standard chamber music literature. Mr. Edelstein also studied in Europe, receiving a diploma with honors from the Fontainebleau Conservatoire in France. He later concertized abroad and recently made his American debut in a New York recital at Aeolian Hall which called forth the unanimous praise of the New York critics.

Arthur Hartmann Quartet
Played ten appearances in greater New York, during season 1926-27; 1927-28.

Re-engaged, during three consecutive years for three concerts, each season, at the Brooklyn Academy.
The Arthur Hartmann Quartet has played at Yale, Harvard, Princeton and numerous other universities and colleges.

THE PUBLIC PAYS ALL TAXES

In the last analysis the public pays all taxes, says an exchange.

Political evasion cannot cloud this fact. Theoretically, indirect taxation such as that levied against manufactured commodities and corporations is no concern of the public. It is even stated that the more business is taxed the lower will be the tax bill of the private citizen.

Utility taxes for example are approximately 12 per cent. If a customer of a utility pays a bill of $8.00 almost a dollar of this goes to the tax collector. The higher utility taxes are the more his bill must be.

This indirect taxation merely uses the industry as a collection agency, standing between the government and the citizen.

Every time we buy an article or a service, whether it is an automobile or a telephone call, a certain amount of the purchase price goes to the support of government. If corporations are over-taxed, the public pays just as surely as it pays taxes on its homes.

The problem of indirect taxation is every citizen's problem. Only the ultimate consumer pays taxes against, for example, personal property and in the same gesture raise them against business, merely dodge the issue.

The question of burdensome and uneconomic taxation can only be solved by intelligent popular understanding and concerted action. Nothing is more detrimental to our prosperity and welfare than over-taxation in any form.

WE ARE THANKFUL

BRAINERD and vicinity can be thankful that the tornado which lashed sections of Minnesota and Wisconsin spared this area. Many old timers on Thursday viewed the sky askance. The temperature flared up to 81 degrees, regular summer heat. That day saw a range of temperature amounting to 50 degrees. Friday it cooled down to a noon temperature of 42 degrees and an evening temperature of 44 degrees.

With such hot air pockets existing in two states and the cold air seeping through because of another whirl of air, it is no wonder that a tornado was generated.

Brainerd at about 5:30 o'clock last evening had a burst of wind and rain, a regular April shower and storm, and no damage was done. That may have been a backwater suction of the tornado as it whipped across southern Minnesota and northern Wisconsin.

STREET CLEANING STARTS MONDAY

ON Monday the city starts its annual spring cleaning of city streets.

Ernest Ritari of the street committee calls attention to the fact that it would be advisable for people on paved streets to clean up their lawns and grounds before this street cleaning gets under way.

Householders doing their cleanup after the city gets through usually contribute to making the street untidy. Piles of leaves, grass and other material are blown about by the wind and back on the clean paving and the city's job of cleaning is reduced in that ratio.

So if there is to be a clean town, let's all get busy now and cooperate with the city and in the manner urged by the street committee.

APPROVES CHOICE

IN speaking of the men named as regents of the University of Minnesota, the St. Cloud Journal-Press states that:

The only member not re-elected was A. D. Wilson of Guthrie, who is an excellent gentleman, but a wise choice was made in his successor, W. H. Gemmell of Brainerd, president of the Minnesota & International railroad, a man of exceptional business ability and experience and a high class citizen.

The head of all the public schools in Minnesota receives $5,000 a year. The head of the Minneapolis schools gets $10,000 a year. The president of the university gets $18,000 while the governor of the state, head of the commonwealth gets $7,500. These are glaring example of the need of salary revision, for the compensation should be in some degree commensurate with the duties and responsibilities of the office.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

THE man who refuses to advertise because of his claim that people don't read the newspaper, is usually about the first one to call the editor's attention to an error at the bottom of a column on the last page.—Leveng's Weekly.

THE Northern Pacific recently handled a special train carrying 300 Mexican laborers, their wives and children, for distribution to sugar beet farmers in Montana, according to advices at the general office building in St. Paul. Women in bright shawls and children in gay-hued garments were included.

THE Northwest, during the year 1928 was a year of progress along the lines of readjustment to the changed economic background which has prevailed since war times, J. R. Mitchel, Federal Reserve Agent of the Federal Reserve Bank, Ninth District, has reported.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

FOR twenty years Irene Robeline struggled cheerfully along as the wife of Guinn Holden, Texas minister. Beneath a cheery smile was a bruised heart. Irene could never capture Holden's love for his first wife, Lilith, that now was given to his beautiful blonde daughter named after her dead mother. Lilith was spoiled by her adoring father. Tina, his daughter by Irene, a dazzling brunette with Ross, Lundy and Patricia, younger children, all came second in his affections. When Lilith goes to New York for a year's music study she meets her first taste of grief. Falling in love with Bill Chester, she breaks her engagement to a Texas boy. Bill called to Paris by his rich grandfather, cables Lilith that he is marrying Sally Burton, to whom he was engaged. Lilith, shaken with anger and bitterness, learns she is to have a child. Irene and Dr. Lundy secretly care for her in New York to prevent Holden from knowing the truth. After the infant's premature birth and death they return home with Lilith. Happiness prevails as Tina is preparing wedding plans for her marriage to a handsome local lad. They will tour the world on their honeymoon. Irene is torn by happiness for Tina and fear for Lilith's shame becoming known. Lilith slowly recovers—more beautiful than ever and her father's idol. He forbids her return to New York. Likewise he denies Tina permission for an early wedding date. Dan, Tina's fiancé, is conscious of Lilith's exquisite beauty. An atmosphere of tense foreboding permeates the house as the wedding date nears. Sheba the cook sings voodoo songs. Then Lilith goes to New York. She him he loves her as she does him. It is part of her plan to get to Paris for revenge on Bill Chester. After a momentary struggle, Dan remains loyal to Tina.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Chapter LXXII.

THAT afternoon as the clock struck five she arrived at the corner by Dan's office building. He was there, at the wheel of his car, looking about him alertly.

He sprang to help her in, and they moved off in silence through the afternoon traffic jam. He headed the car toward the country again, she noted with ironic eye. She was resolved to say no word, to let him speak first this time. She read his mind with bitter mirth.

He said nothing. . . . He turned his car into the country lane they had found the day before, as if in that spot he could feel free to express his feelings. The sunflowers nodded in the dusty roadside, and in the cotton field the negroes were picking again, their colored garments bright touches of color against the green of the plants and the white bolls like great roses.

He cut off his engine and turned to face her. "I couldn't sleep last night for thinking about our talk," he began nervously.

"No?" "I was afraid you must have thought me abrupt and crude." She smiled, to put him at his ease. "I understand. Let's do as you said—forget."

"Yes, but first I wanted to tell you how I feel about it." "Yes, Dan?"

Poor egoist, as if his feelings mattered in the least to her! He was only a ticket to Paris. "This will be the last time we'll see each other by ourselves," he went on jerkily, as if fumbling for his words. "I wanted you to know that I'm—devilish sorry about all this, Lilith. That I'm suffering—more than you."

"That's unlikely." "I'd shoot myself before I'd hurt Tina. But—"

He paused as if waiting for her to supply his words. She looked away from his tragic face to the field where the negroes were picking cotton, their heads bent over the rows, their heavy sacks dragging behind them. Suddenly the group began singing, "Raccoon Totes de Bushy Tail," which she had last sung for Bill.

Memory blotted out the cotton field, blinded her eyes so that she saw nothing of what was before her, deafened her so that she paid no heed to what the man beside her was saying. "You do understand, don't you, Lilith, dearest?" he said brokenly. "I'd give my life to be free to tell you how much I love you. But we can't, because of Tina."

"We can't, because of Tina," came her obedient echo.

She struggled back to the present, as from a whelming sea. "I've fought against this thing for weeks," he was saying. "You don't know."

She smiled. He had waked to interest only when she had willed it so. She could almost have counted his pulse beats in those weeks. . . . Men were so simple that they oughtn't to be allowed out alone.

The cotton pickers straggled from the field, and she caught the last strains of their song.

The sun was a red ball low on the rim of the field, and cast a rich light over the white bolls and the measured phalanxes of the cotton plants.

"Won't you say something to me, Lilith?" the man pleaded, bending over her.

"I must unsay what I said yesterday," she murmured. "No, no! We've both got to do our duty by little Tina, but at least we can—remember!"

"I'm pretty good at remembering," her low voice answered him. She looked up at him with sick intensity of pain, such longing in her eyes that it seemed he couldn't bear it.

With a cry he swept his arms about her, pressed his lips to hers in a burning kiss. But it was not his arms that she clung to, not his lips that hers so passionately kissed in return. Not his, but Bill's. For one mad moment she was trying to drug herself with the thought that Bill still loved her, that they two were together in the heart of the labyrinth, with no ocean, no heartbreaking separation to sunder them forever.

Then in another instant she pushed Dan away. "Take me home!" she cried, with a sob.

He looked at her in despair, then at the lane, where sunflowers nodded toward the dying sun, at the cotton field with its marching rows, its white flowers, as if to stamp them forever on his mind. Without a word he started his engine and turned toward home. He drove like a man trying to outrun his thoughts, while Lilith sat motionless beside him, saying never a word.

Supper was over, and the family were on the front porch when they drove up. This time Tina did not run down the steps to meet Dan, didn't utter any question or reproach, but her big brown eyes were bewildered, hurt, as he walked up the steps with Lilith.

She could not help seeing the tense, strained look on his boyish face, the rigidity of his supple body. She could not help seeing that there had been tears on Lilith's face. Could she see that there had been kisses there, too?

"Been for a little drive. Sorry to be late." Dan's eyes lifted bravely to hers, as if he scorned subterfuge.

But his eyes fell before the wordless inquisition in Irene's look.

"Come in and I'll see about some supper for you two," Irene said quietly, and she led the way to the dining room.

During their meal she chatted courteously, with no reference to the incident uppermost in the mind of each. She poured ice tea, she served salad, she was attentive to their wants, and talked pleasantly of the callers who had been in that day of the new presents that Dan had not yet seen.

As Sheba passed a dish to Lilith, she muttered unintelligible words, her face more like a gargoyle than ever.

"What did you say, Sheba?" Lilith questioned.

"Nothing, nothing." The mask of passivity slipped over the jungle face, as she left the room. "I think Sheba likes to fancy herself a conjuror," observed Lilith. "She was making curious passes over the strands of hair she took out of my comb this morning."

"The hair of the intended victim is needed for voodoo," explained Irene.

Sheba padded in on her soft soles, to bring hot biscuits, so the subject was dropped.

Presently they could hear her singing in the kitchen.

"Don'tcher look at me, Ca'line, Don'tcher look at me! You done busted up many a po' nigger's heart. But you ain't agoin' to bust up mine."

Oh, it's hahd to love, An' it's mighty hahd to leave, But it's hahder to make up yore m-ind?"

To the relief of each the dining room presently was stormed by a group of girls and young men, who came in to see the newest presents.

Irene went out to sit beside her husband in the swing on the porch. "Guinn, dear," she began acerbously, "I wish you'd—speak to Lilith about Dan. They're seeing too much of each other just now."

"Don't be silly, Irene." "I'm nervous, I can't help it. They oughtn't to go off together like that. It's making Tina unhappy." Her tone was sharp. She must make him understand and help.

His cigar tip glowed intermittently like a firefly impaled.

"Just four days to the wedding now. I'd let things go till then. No need to worry. You women are so fidgety. . . ."

"And men are so blind! Tina's happiness could be smashed in less than four days if Dan comes under Lilith's spell. I can't have it so!"

He twisted his cigar uncomfortably. "She's been peevish with me about the New York trip. I doubt if anything I'd say just now would help."

"You're dead wrong about refusing. She's in a mood now where it's dangerous to cross her. Say you'll let her go!"

He was stubbornly silent. Tormented by her thoughts, she rose and went upstairs. She listened a moment to the chatter of the group from the dining room. They presently came up to inspect the presents, then strayed out on to the lawn. She went to the windows to look down on them.

Yes, Dan was there—and Lilith. So long as they were with the crowd, all was well for the moment. When she heard the callers leaving, she moved restlessly about till Lilith's light footsteps told her the girl was coming up to her room.

THE PUBLIC PAYS ALL TAXES

IN the last analysis the public pays all taxes, says an exchange.

Political evasion cannot cloud this fact. Theoretically, indirect taxation such as that levied against manufactured commodities and corporations is no concern of the public. It is even stated that the more business is taxed the lower will be the tax bill of the private citizen.

Utility taxes for example are approximately 12 per cent. If a customer of a utility pays a bill of $8.00 almost a dollar of this goes to the tax collector. The higher utility taxes are the more his bill must be.

This indirect taxation merely uses the industry as a collection agency, standing between the government and the citizen.

Every time we buy an article or a service, whether it is an automobile or a telephone call, a certain amount of the purchase price goes to the support of government. If corporations are over-taxed, the public pays just as surely as it pays taxes on its homes.

The problem of indirect taxation is every citizen's problem. Only the ultimate consumer pays taxes against, for example, personal property and in the same gesture raise them against business, merely dodge the issue.

The question of burdensome and uneconomic taxation can only be solved by intelligent popular understanding and concerted action. Nothing is more detrimental to our prosperity and welfare than over-taxation in any form.

The temperature flared up to 81 degrees, regular summer heat. That day saw a range of temperature amounting to 50 degrees. Friday it cooled down to a noon temperature of 42 degrees and an evening temperature of 44 degrees.

With such hot air pockets existing in two states and the cold air seeping through because of another whirl of air, it is no wonder that a tornado was generated.

Brainerd at about 5:30 o'clock last evening had a burst of wind and rain, a regular April shower and storm, and no damage was done. That may have been a backwater suction of the tornado as it whipped across southern Minnesota and northern Wisconsin.

STREET CLEANING STARTS MONDAY

ON Monday the city starts its annual spring cleaning of city streets.

Ernest Ritari of the street committee calls attention to the fact that it would be advisable for people on paved streets to clean up their lawns and grounds before this street cleaning gets under way.

Householders doing their cleanup after the city gets through usually contribute to making the street untidy. Piles of leaves, grass and other material are blown about by the wind and back on the clean paving and the city's job of cleaning is reduced in that ratio.

So if there is to be a clean town, let's all get busy now and cooperate with the city and in the manner urged by the street committee.

APPROVES CHOICE

IN speaking of the men named as regents of the University of Minnesota, the St. Cloud Journal-Press states that:

The only member not re-elected was A. D. Wilson of Guthrie, who is an excellent gentleman, but a wise choice was made in his successor, W. H. Gemmell of Brainerd, president of the Minnesota & International railroad, a man of exceptional business ability and experience and a high class citizen.

THE head of all the public schools in Minnesota receives $5,000 a year. The head of the Minneapolis schools gets $10,000 a year. The president of the university gets $18,000 while the governor of the state, head of the commonwealth gets $7,500. These are glaring example of the need of salary revision, for the compensation should be in some degree commensurate with the duties and responsibilities of the office.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

Impatient Griselda
by Dorothy Scarborough

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

FOR twenty years Irene Robeline struggled cheerfully along as the wife of Guinn Holden, Texas minister. Beneath a cheery smile was a bruised heart. Irene could never capture Holden's love for his first wife, Lilith, that now was given to his beautiful blonde daughter named after her dead mother. Lilith was spoiled by her adoring father. Tina, his daughter by Irene, a dazzling brunette with Ross, Lundy and Patricia, younger children, all came second in his affections. When Lilith goes to New York for a year's music study she meets her first taste of grief. Falling in love with Bill Chester, she breaks her engagement to a Texas boy. Bill called to Paris by his rich grandfather, cables Lilith that he is marrying Sally Burton, to whom he was engaged. Lilith, shaken with anger and bitterness, learns she is to have a child. Irene and Dr. Lundy secretly care for her in New York to prevent Holden from knowing the truth. After the infant's premature birth and death they return home with Lilith. Happiness prevails as Tina is preparing wedding plans for her marriage to a handsome local lad. They will tour the world on their honeymoon. Irene is torn by happiness for Tina and fear for Lilith's shame becoming known. Lilith slowly recovers—more beautiful than ever and her father's idol. He forbids her return to New York. Likewise she denies Tina permission for an early wedding date. Dan, Tina's fiancé, is conscious of Lilith's exquisite beauty. An atmosphere of tense forbidding permeates the house as the wedding date nears. Sheba the cook sings woe songs. Then Lundy and Tina plan to get to Paris for revenge on Bill Chester. After a momentary struggle, Dan remains loyal to Tina.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Chapter LXXII.

THAT afternoon as the clock struck five she arrived at the corner by Dan's office building. He was there, at the wheel of his car, looking about him alertly.

He sprang to help her in, and they moved off in silence through the afternoon traffic jumble. He headed the car toward the country again, she noted with ironic eye. She was resolved to say no word, to let him speak first this time. She read his mind with bitter mirth.

He said nothing. . . . He turned his car into the country lane they had found the day before, as if in that spot he could feel freer to express his feelings. The sunflowers nodded in the dusty roadside, and in the cotton field the negroes were picking again, their colored garments bright touches of color against the green of the plants and the white bolls like great roses.

He cut off his engine and turned to face her. "I couldn't sleep last night for thinking about our talk," he began nervously.

"No?" "I was afraid you must have thought me abrupt and crude."

She smiled, to put him at his ease. "I understand. Let's do as you said—forget."

"Yes, but first I wanted to tell you how I feel about it."

"Yes, Dan?" "Poor egoist, as if his feelings mattered in the least to her! He was only a ticket to Paris."

"This will be the last time we'll see each other by ourselves," he went on jerkily, as if fumbling for his words. "I wanted you to know that I'm—devilish sorry about all this, Lilith. That I'm suffering—more than you."

"That's unlikely."

"I'd shoot myself before I'd hurt Tina. But—"

He paused as if waiting for her to supply his words.

She looked away from his tragic face to the field where the negroes were picking cotton, their heads bent over the rows, their heavy sacks dragging behind them. Suddenly the group began singing, "Raccoon Totes de Bushy Tail," which she had last sung for Bill.

Memory blotted out the cotton field, blinded her eyes so that she saw nothing of what was before her, deafened her so that she paid no heed to what the man beside her was saying.

"You do understand, don't you, Lilith, dearest?" he said brokenly. "I'd give my life to be free to tell you how much I love you. But we can't, because of Tina."

"We can't, because of Tina," came her obedient echo.

She struggled back to the present, as from a whirling sea. "I've fought against this thing for weeks," he was saying. "You don't know."

She smiled. He had waked to interest only when she had willed it so. She could almost have counted his pulse beats in those weeks. . . . Men were so simple that they oughtn't to be allowed out alone.

The cotton pickers straggled from the field, and she caught the last strains of their song.

The sun was a red ball low on the rim of the field, and cast a rich light over the white bolls and the measured phalanxes of the cotton plants.

"Won't you say something to me, Lilith?" the man pleaded, bending over her.

"I must unsway what I said yesterday," she murmured.

"No, no! We've both got to do our duty by little Tina, but at least we can—remember!"

"I'm pretty good at remembering," her low voice answered him.

She looked up at him with sick intensity of pain, such longing in her eyes that it seemed he couldn't bear it.

With a cry he swept his arms about her, pressed his lips to hers in a burning kiss. But it was not his arms that she clung to, not his lips that hers so passionately kissed in return. Not his, but Bill's. For one mad moment she was trying to drug herself with the thought that Bill still loved her, that they two were together in the heart of the labyrinth, with no ocean, no heartbreaking separation to sunder them forever. . . .

Then in another instant she pushed Dan away. "Take me home!" she cried, with a sob.

He looked at her in despair, then at the lane, where sunflowers nodded toward the dying sun, at the cotton field with its marching rows, its white flowers, as if to stamp them forever on his mind.

Without a word he started his engine and turned toward home. He drove like a man trying to outrun his thoughts, while Lilith sat motionless beside him, saying never a word. . . .

And the family were on the front porch when they drove up. This time Tina did not run down the steps to meet Dan, didn't utter any question or reproach, but her big brown eyes were bewildered, hurt, as he walked up the steps with Lilith.

She could not help seeing the tense, strained look on his boyish face, the rigidity of his supple body. She could not help seeing that there had been tears on Lilith's face. Could she see that there had been kisses there, too?

"Been for a little drive. Sorry to be late," Dan's eyes lifted bravely to hers, as if he scorned subterfuge.

But his eyes fell before the wordless inquisition in Irene's look.

"Come in and I'll see about some supper for you two," Irene said quietly, and she led the way to the dining room.

During their meal she chatted courteously, with no reference to the incident uppermost in the mind of each. She poured ice tea, she served salad, she was attentive to their wants, and talked pleasantly of the callers who had been in that day of the new presents that Dan had not yet seen.

As Sheba passed a dish to Lilith, she muttered unintelligible words, her face more like a gargoyle than ever.

"What did you say, Sheba?" Lilith questioned.

"Nothing, nothing." The mask of passivity slipped over the jungle face, as she left the room.

"I think Sheba likes to fancy herself a conjuror," observed Lilith. "She was making curious passes over the strands of hair she took out of my comb this morning."

"The hair of the intended victim is needed for voodoo," explained Irene.

Sheba padded in on her soft soles, to bring hot biscuits, so the subject was dropped.

Presently they could hear her singing in the kitchen.

"Don't look at me, Ca'line, Don't look at me! You done busted up many a po' nigger's heart But you ain't agoin' to bust up Oh, it's hadd to love, An' it's mighty hadd to leave, But it's hadd to make up yore m-ind!"

To the relief of each the dining room presently was stormed by a group of girls and young men, who came in to see the newest presents.

Irene went out to sit beside her husband in the swing on the porch. "Guinn, dear," she began nervously, "I wish you'd—speak to Lilith about Dan. They're seeing too much of each other just now."

"Don't be silly, Irene."

"I'm nervous, I can't help it. They oughtn't to go off together like that. It's making Tina unhappy." Her tone was sharp. She must make him understand and help.

His cigar tip glowed intermittently like a firefly impaled. "Just four days to the wedding now. I'd let things go till then. No need to worry. . . . You women are so fidgety. . . ."

"And men are so blind! Tina's happiness could be smashed in less than four days if Dan comes under Lilith's spell. I can't have it so!"

He twisted his cigar uncomfortably. "She's been peeved with me about the New York trip. I doubt if anything I'd say just now would help."

"You're dead wrong about refusing. She's in a mood now where it's dangerous to cross her. Say you'll let her go!"

He was stubbornly silent. Tormented by her thoughts, she rose and went upstairs. She listened a moment to the chatter of the group from the dining room. They presently came up to inspect the presents, then strayed out on to the lawn. She went to the windows to look down on them.

Yes, Dan was there—and Lilith. So long as they were with the crowd, all was well for the moment.

When she heard the callers leaving, she moved restlessly about till Lilith's light footsteps told her the girl was coming up to her room.

Portraying a new side of collegiate life in vivid colors, but with rare understanding, "Red Lips," starring Charles Buddy Rogers and Marian Nixon, will be here at the Lyceum theatre Sunday only.

Because of its youth and interest, college has been a frequent subject of motion pictures. "Red Lips" depicts the romance between a shy youth and an off-campus flapper. Rogers and Miss Nixon, two of Hollywood's youngest stars, are said to portray to perfection the heart of modern youth.

RUNAWAYS FOUND AT ANOKA SEEKING WORK

Ruth Vogt, 16, Helen Figge, 14, Recognized This Morning as They Apply for Work

Will be Returned by Parents Today Who Had Left for Twin Cities to Assist in Search

Ruth Vogt, 16, Helen Figge, 14, missing Brainerd high school girls in their freshman year, were found this morning in Anoka, Minn., by Sheriff U. S. Pratt of Anoka county, according to Sheriff Claus Theorin who received word to that effect immediately after the girls had been located.

Parents of the girls, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Vogt, 623 F street N. E. and Mr. and Mrs. George Figge, 315 Third avenue who left for the Twin Cities last evening to assist in the search are expected to return their daughters to Brainerd this afternoon.

The two, answering the descriptions sent out from Brainerd and over WCCO radio station, were reported to Sheriff Pratt as seeking work in Anoka.

According to Sheriff Theorin the girls had been in Minneapolis during their disappearance. They had secured a ride to Anoka last evening and had attempted to secure work this morning when recognized.

The girls had left Brainerd by bus the morning of March 27 for Minneapolis. Since then a search had been instituted throughout the northwest to locate them.

RANGE MINING OUTLOOK GOOD

No Idle Men on Cuyuna Range; Croft Mine to Start Shipping

Crosby, April 6.—The mining outlook on the Cuyuna iron range for the coming season is pleasing to business and mining men in the several towns. The raise of 25 cents per ton on ore and early activities around mines has led business men to predict a good season.

Butler Brothers are preparing for an active season at their Merritt mine at Trommald. This mine was idle for several years until taken over by Butler Brothers last year. The mine was stripped and made into an open pit. A shaft is being sunk at present at the Merritt mine for drainage purposes.

The Marocco mine at Trommald is employing a few men preparatory to an active summer. It is an open pit. A new series of "jiggers" has been installed at this mine and also a new "grizzly" for separating rock from ore.

Butler Brothers have had a crew of men at work all winter stripping the Mahonomen mine. This work is still going on. At the Mahonomen mine men have been at work during the last month in the pit and it is expected that the mine will begin operations soon.

Butler Brothers' underground mine, the Louise, is employing a few men and will be among the shippers again this year. At Riverton, the Sagamore has a repair crew at work and is due to open for the season soon.

The Amherst Mining company's property, which is one of the steady producers of the range, has a crew of around 100 men at work and will soon start shipping. The Inland Steel company has both the Armour No. 1 and No. 2, underground properties, operating steadily, employing around 300 men, and also will start shipping next month.

The repair and remodeling work which has been going on all winter by the Evergreen Mining company at their sintering plant, is practically finished and the plant will start in a few days. With the changes made at the plant it is expected that it will turn out half again as much tonnage as last year, or around 900 tons per day.

The Evergreen company has done considerable stripping in its open pit and has made a new approach north across the highway to their dump. A new gas-electric shovel has been added to the equipment. The Evergreen pit and the state lease pit have been joined together.

The Croft mine will start shipping shortly. This mine employs 125 men.

TWO DETOURS USED

Stretches of T. H. No. 2 and Merrifield Road in Poor Condition

Two detours were suggested for use by motorists for better traffic conditions on Trunk Highway No. 2 and the Merrifield road.

Many motorists today used the Dum Park road from Brainerd in reaching T. H. No. 2 leading to the Cuyuna Range.

A detour through the paper mill yard was suggested to escape the stretch of road in poor condition on Mill street.

The sudden breakup of the frost has made parts of the two roads in poor travelling condition.

Other highways and state aid roads in the county were reported passable today.

Driver Reports He Did Not See Engine on Crossing Until He Got There

Melvin A. Gordon, 514 Quince street, miraculously escaped serious injury last evening when while driving his Ford sedan to work at the Northern Pacific railway roundhouse where he is employed as a helper struck a N. P. switch engine on the 13th street crossing.

Mr. Gordon stated that he was not aware of the engine until he was almost on the track. He attempted to stop suddenly but was too close to the engine to prevent the accident.

Mr. Gordon received a cut on his left hand. After receiving first aid he walked to work. His car was badly damaged.

2 On Murder Bent Get Sentences to St. Cloud Reformatory

St. Cloud, April 6. — (C.E.) — Mrs. Gusta Knutson, Mora, and Alfred Behrendt, her 16-year-old son by a previous marriage, today were under 10-year reformatory sentences after their confessed plot to murder Andrew Knutson, their wealthy husband and step-father had failed.

Judge Albert Tholgaard sentenced Mrs. Knutson to 10 years in the reformatory for women at Shakopee and Alfred to a similar term in the reformatory here when they pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Both admitted before Judge Tholgaard that Mrs. Knutson had planned the murder of Knutson in the hopes that she could remarry with the money from his estate, and Alfred who actually shot and wounded his stepfather revealed that his mother had promised him the stepfather's farm.

It was said that the wealthy farmer would recover from his wounds but might lose the sight of one eye.

Sixty Boys and Girls to Appear in Cantata, Swedish Glee Club to Sing

On next Tuesday evening, the Lowell P. T. A. will put on their best program of the season. The meeting will be called at 7:30 o'clock in order to get in a very short business session as this is the last regular meeting of the school year.

The principal, Miss R. Mabel Williams, assisted by the teachers of the school, and music supervisor, Miss Cora Rickard have put in much time preparing the following exceptionally fine program:

Cantata, "Childhood of Hiawatha" — Boys and girls of 7th and 8th grades, approximately 60 voices.

Camp Fire girls will present three playlets entitled:

"The Mulligan's Estate," "Sister's Beau," "Late Again, Helen."

Allen Rasch, Millicent Cartwright, Lois Pfaffendorf, Charlotte Kaatz, Virginia Dents, Mary Jones, Margaret Fitzsimmons, Beryl Zimmerman, Maybelle Lind, Marcelle Huseby, Carolla Strassburg, Gladys Zander, Virginia Crust.

Duet, vocal — Marjory Forsberg, and Virginia Rowland, accompanied by Miss Cora Rickard.

Violin solo — Victor Bourgeois, accompanied by Miss Cora Rickard. Songs — Swedish Glee club. A small charge will be made for the program and also the lunch which will be served immediately following. This is the first financial affair put on by the association this year.

KING HOME HARD HIT

Damage Placed at Over $3,000; 20 Firemen Fight Spectacular Fires

Fire caused a damage of over $3,000 early today in Northeast Brainerd, burning to the ground one dwelling and doing heavy damage to an adjoining dwelling.

The homes hit were: The residence of Claud Butcher, 816 Sixth avenue N. E. levelled to the ground, a complete loss with damage placed on building and contents of over $2,000.

The residence of Ralph King, employee of the Bollik Transportation Co., 820 Sixth avenue N. E., damaged to the extent of over $1,000.

The fire started in the Butcher residence about 3:20 a. m. while Mr. and Mrs. Butcher had started for the train for the Twin Cities for the week end. Their five children had been taken to the homes of friends for the night. An overheated stove was given today as the cause of the fire.

The flames gutted the inside of the building before noticed by neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. King and neighbors were able to save the majority of their furniture as the flames spread to their home. Firemen extinguished the flames after one wall of the building had been burned.

The Butcher residence was owned by W. L. Curtis, Niaswa, Minn., while the King home was owned by E. R. Barnea of 921 Ivy street.

Both residences were of frame, one story and attic.

Twenty firemen fought the spectacular fire which attracted residents of Northeast Brainerd from their sleep.

Damages to the King residence is covered by insurance.

RUNAWAYS FOUND AT ANOKA SEEKING WORK

Ruth Vogt, 16, Helen Figge, 14, Recognized This Morning as They Apply for Work

Will be Returned by Parents Today Who Had Left for Twin Cities to Assist in Search

Ruth Vogt, 16, Helen Figge, 14, missing Brainerd high school girls in their freshman year, were found this morning in Anoka, Minn., by Sheriff U. S. Pratt of Anoka county, according to Sheriff Claus Theorin who received word to that effect immediately after the girls had been located.

Parents of the girls, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Vogt, 623 F street N. E. and Mr. and Mrs. George Figge, 315 Third avenue who left for the Twin Cities last evening to assist in the search are expected to return their daughters to Brainerd this afternoon.

The two, answering the descriptions sent out from Brainerd and over WCCO, radio station, were reported to Sheriff Pratt as seeking work in Anoka.

According to Sheriff Theorin the girls had been in Minneapolis during their disappearance. They had secured a ride to Anoka last evening and had attempted to secure work this morning when recognized.

The girls had left Brainerd by bus the morning of March 27 for Minneapolis. Since then a search had been instituted throughout the northwest to locate them.

IDEAL

A birthday party was held at the Rear home in honor of Maybel Rear Thursday evening. Those who were present were Gertrude and Art Clarkvist, Orvil Gladys and Maybel Oas, Marie Plum, Mavis Monson, Ben and Ira Kenebel, Bernice and Nelly Evenson, Roy, Ruth and Alice Hauge, Nora Knutson and Mr. and Mrs. Gus Shoalts and daughter Elvina. The evening was spent in playing games after a delicious lunch was served. All wishing her many more happy birthdays.

Clarence Allen, Nels Evenson and Harry Rear helped R. E. Hauge saw wood Friday.

Richard Danielson arrived home Sunday from Minneapolis.

Martin Knutson was a Brainerd visitor Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Allers left for Minneapolis Tuesday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hauge, Roy, Ruth and Alice were dinner guests at the Ole Oas home Sunday.

Mrs. Ole Johnson entertained the ideal ladies ad Wednesday. Those who were present were Rev. O. Rem, Mrs. Anton Monson, Mrs. H. Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. John Hanson and family, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Clarkvist and family, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hauge and family, Mrs. H. Moe, Mrs. James Ellwood, Mrs. Jack Lamont and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Allen and son Jean, and Jack Darrough.

Roy, Ruth and Alice Hauge, Maybel and Harry Rear and Mavis Monson were among those who attended the basket social given at the Pequot Lutheran church basement Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hanson, Gertrude Clarkvist, Mr. and Mrs. P. Sata and H. E. Plum were Brainerd visitors Monday. Also visited Mrs. Plum who is in the hospital. She is reported to be getting along nicely and we all hope that she may be home soon.

RANGE MINING

OUTLOOK GOOD

No Idle Men on Cuyuna Range; Croft Mine to Start Shipping

Crosby, April 6.—The mining outlook on the Cuyuna iron range for the coming season is pleasing to business and mining men in the several towns. The raise of 25 cents per ton on ore and early activities around mines has led business men to predict a good season.

Butler Brothers are preparing for an active season at their Merritt mine at Trommald. This mine was idle for several years until taken over by Butler Brothers last year. The mine was stripped and made into an open pit. A shaft is being sunk at present at the Merritt mine for drainage purposes.

The Marocco mine at Trommald is employing a few men preparatory to an active summer. It is an open pit. A new series of "jiggers" has been installed at this mine and also a new "grizzly" for separating rock from ore.

Butler Brothers have had a crew of men at work all winter stripping the Mahomen mine. This work is still going on. At the Mahomen mine men have been at work during the last month in the pit and it is expected that the mine will begin operations soon.

Butler Brothers' underground mine, the Louise, is employing a few men and will be among the shippers again this year. At Riverton, the Sagamore has a repair crew at work and is due to open for the season soon.

The Amherst Mining company's property, which is one of the steady producers of the range, has a crew of around 100 men at work and will soon start shipping. The Inland Steel company has both the Armour No. 1 and No. 2, underground properties, operating steadily, employing around 300 men, and also will start shipping next month.

The repair and remodeling work which has been going on all winter by the Evergreen Mining company at their sintering plant, is practically finished and the plant will start in a few days. With the changes made at the plant it is expected that it will turn out half again as much tonnage as last year, or around 900 tons per day.

The Evergreen company has done considerable stripping in its open pit and has made a new approach north across the highway to their dump. A new gas-electric shovel has been added to the equipment. The Evergreen pit and the state lease pit have been joined together. The Croft mine will start shipping shortly. This mine employs 125 men.

TWO DETOURS USED

Stretches of T. H. No. 2 and Merrifield Road in Poor Condition

Two detours were suggested for use by motorists for better traffic conditions on Trunk Highway No. 2 and the Merrifield road.

Many motorists today used the Dum Park road from Brainerd in reaching T. H. No. 2 leading to the Cuyuna Range.

A detour through the paper mill yard was suggested to escape the stretch of road in poor condition on Mill street.

The sudden breakup of the frost has made parts of the two roads in poor travelling condition.

Other highways and state aid roads in the county were reported passable today.

Get Sentences to

St. Cloud Reformatory

St. Cloud, April 6.—(CP)—Mrs. Gusta Knutson, Mora, and Alfred Behrendt, her 16-year-old son by a previous marriage, today were under 10-year reformatory sentences after their confessed plot to murder Andrew Knutson, their wealthy husband and step-father had failed.

Judge Albert Tholgaard sentenced Mrs. Knutson to 10 years in the reformatory for women at Shakopee and Alfred to a similar term in the reformatory here when they pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Both admitted before Judge Tholgaard that Mrs. Knutson had planned the murder of Knutson in the hopes that she could remarry with the money from his estate, and Alfred who actually shot and wounded his stepfather revealed that his mother had promised him the stepfather's farm.

It was said that the wealthy farmer would recover from his wounds but might lose the sight of one eye.

ATHENS, TEX., JACKSON, MICH.,
JOES, COLO., CLASSEN HIGH,

SEMI-FINALISTS USE DIFFERENT
STYLES OF PLAY IN REACH-
ING PRESENT PLACE

By BERT DEMBY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Bartlett Gym, Chicago, April 6.—The high school basketball championship of the United States will be decided tonight when the two survivors of more than forty entries meet in the final game of the University of Chicago's national inter-scholastic tournament.

Four teams remained in title running when the semi-finals began this afternoon. They were Athens, Tex., Jackson, Mich., Joes, Colo., and Classen High of Oklahoma City.

Curiously enough, the semi-finalists have used different styles of play in reaching their present position.

Athens, a tall husky team, has banked on its endurance to wear down opponents and the success of this style is divided by the fact that the Texans have piled up most of their scores in the latter part of the games.

Jackson, taller, than the average and fast, prefers to do its shooting from near the foul line and rarely attempts to work the ball under the basket for short shots.

Athens reached the semi-finals by defeating the College Grove team, 27-7, and Jackson won from the strong Wheeler, Miss., team, 25 to 14.

Joes, Colo., a town of less than 100 people, has been the surprise of the tournaments. The team has confidence enough in its scoring ability to depend almost entirely on offensive play. It has outscored opponents by more than 2-1, having 95 points to 47.

Classen is a smooth working aggregation with a man for man defense, which really is good. It has two great players in Beck and McCracken and one of the best passing games seen in the tournament.

Opinions seemed to favor Athens because of size and endurance.

The Athens team meets Jackson in the first semi-final at 2 P. M., and Joes and Classen were to play an hour later. The final game will start at 9:30 tonight.

Chicago, April 6.—Yesterday's scores and today's schedule in the national high school basketball tournament:

Athens, Tex., 22; College Grove, Tenn., 7.

Jackson, Mich., 25; Wheeler, Miss., 14.

Joes, Colo., 32; Jena, La., 20.

Classen of Oklahoma City, 33; Warren, Ark., 22.

Consolation—

Morton of Cicero, Ill., 16; Moorhead, Minn., 16.

Wheatland, Wyo., 24; Bristol, Conn., 11.

Brocton, Mass., 31; Johnson City, Ill., 29.

Columbia, S. C., 42; Winnemucca, Nev., 13.

Today's schedule—

Athens vs. Jackson.

Joes vs. Classen.

On Leading Team

Howard English, member of the Hub Recreation team of Joliet, Ill., which is leading the A. B. C. tournament with a score of 3.063. With only a few days left their mark seems likely to win the top prize.

Philadelphia, April 6.—(UP)—The Philadelphia Athletics' infield probably will start the season with Jimmy Fox at first, Max Bishop at second, Jimmy Dykes at shortstop and Sammy Hale at third. The Mack won 29 out of 29 exhibition games in the south. The spring series between the A's and Phillies was scheduled to open at Shibe Park today.

New Orleans, La., April 6.—Davy Baneroff was slated to go back to shortstop for the Brooklyn Robins in today's game against the Cleveland Indians. The Brooklyn infield yesterday was made up of Carey, Rosenfield and Rhie on the bases and Harvey Hendrick, an outfielder at shortstop.

Birmingham, Ala., April 6.—The Washington Senators prepared to turn the tables on the Birmingham Southern League club today and avenge yesterday's defeat. A dinky home run by Andy Moore gave Birmingham its only run. Each side made three hits.

Championship Contender

Johnnie Beck, Brainerd, who will attempt to wrest the state light-weight wrestling championship from Fred Ross at the U. C. T. auditorium Monday evening. The title bout will follow eight fast preliminaries.

WILL BE IN BEST SHAPE FOR TITLE BOUT HERE MONDAY

EIGHT PRELIMINARIES, FOUR

ON EVENING'S CARD

U. C. T. AUDITORIUM WILL BE
STAGE FOR SPORT CLASSIC;
TICKETS GOING FAST

The U. C. T. auditorium will be the scene Monday evening of one of the best wrestling and boxing cards staged in the northwest in years.

The headline event will be the Johnnie Beck-Fred Ross clash for the lightweight wrestling championship. Beck, Brainerd mat artist, is the contender.

Both men are at the stage now in training where they are ready to go on the mat for the big event. The bout will be to a finish, best two out of three falls.

Reserved seat tickets are selling at Paul M. Jones, Van's Cafe and O. A. Peterson Clothing Co. store.

The importance of the card and the interest taken in it should mean a sell out of the house.

STOCKS CONTINUE VERY IRREGULAR

New York, April 6.—(UP)—Irregularity continued to characterize stock market dealings in the final session of the week despite favorable overnight business and mercantile reviews. However, dealings were very quiet, reflecting uncertainty, which continued to prevail in speculative circles.

U. S. Steel continued firm, moving up fractionally, while Gold Dust, International Combustion, New Haven and Bethlehem firmed up sharply. On the other hand, Chrysler, Radio, International Nickel and Warner Brothers pictures were in supply.

Coppers were again heavy, American Smelting moving a point lower at 10 1/2 and Anaconda fractionally lower at 14 1/2. Kennecott and Greene-Canaan held steady around their previous closing levels.

Price movements in general were in an extremely narrow trading range and pools were reluctant to mark up the favorites in the face of the prevailing uncertainty.

Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Packard, Westinghouse and U. S. Industrial alcohol held steady around their previous closing levels, while oils and rails were supplied at concessions.

Atlanta, Ga., April 6.—(UP)—The St. Louis Cardinals remained here today for another game with the Atlanta Southern League club. Hafey and Haney starred in yesterday's victory over Atlanta, each driving out three hits.

BECK AND ROSS IN FINAL TRAINING

2 SURVIVORS OF OVER 40 ENTRIES MEET IN FINAL

ATHENS, TEX., JACKSON, MICH.,
JOES, COLO., CLASSEN HIGH,
OKLA., IN RUNNING

SEMI-FINALISTS USE DIFFERENT
STYLES OF PLAY IN REACH-
ING PRESENT PLACE

By BERT DEMBY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Bartlett Gym, Chicago, April 6.—The high school basketball championship of the United States will be decided tonight when the two survivors of more than forty entries meet in the final game of the University of Chicago's national inter-scholastic tournament.

Four teams remained in title running when the semi-finals began this afternoon. They were Athens, Tex., Jackson, Mich., Joes, Colo., and Classen High of Oklahoma City.

Curiously enough, the semi-finalists have used different styles of play in reaching their present position.

Athens, a tall husky team, has banked on its endurance to wear down opponents and the success of this style is divided by the fact that the Texans have piled up most of their scores in the latter part of the games.

Jackson, taller, than the average and fast, prefers to do its shooting from near the foul line and rarely attempts to work the ball under the basket for short shots.

Athens reached the semi-finals by defeating the College Grove team, 27-7, and Jackson won from the strong Wheeler, Miss., team, 25 to 14.

Joes, Colo., a town of less than 100 people, has been the surprise of the tournaments. The team has confidence enough in its scoring ability to depend almost entirely on offensive play. It has outscored opponents by more than 2-1, having 95 points to 47.

Classen is a smooth working aggregation with a man for man defense, which really is good. It has two great players in Beck and McCracken and one of the best passing games seen in the tournament.

Opinions seemed to favor Athens because of size and endurance.

The Athens team meets Jackson in the first semi-final at 2 P. M., and Joes and Classen were to play an hour later. The final game will start at 9:30 tonight.

Chicago, April 6.—Yesterday's scores and today's schedule in the national high school basketball tournament:

Athens, Tex., 22; College Grove, Tenn., 7.

Jackson, Mich., 25; Wheeler, Miss., 14.

Joes, Colo., 32; Jena, La., 20.

Classen of Oklahoma City, 33; Warren, Ark., 22.

Consolation—

Morton of Cicero, Ill., 16; Moorhead, Minn., 16.

Wheatland, Wyo., 24; Bristol, Conn., 11.

Brocton, Mass., 31; Johnson City, Ill., 29.

Columbia, S. C., 42; Winnemucca, Nev., 13.

Today's schedule—

Athens vs. Jackson.

Joes vs. Classen.

On Leading Team

Howard English, member of the Hub Recreation team of Joliet, Ill., which is leading the A. B. C. tournament with a score of 3,063. With only a few days left their mark seems likely to win the top prize.

Philadelphia, April 6.—(UP)—The Philadelphia Athletics' infield probably will start the season with Jimmy Fox at first, Max Bishop at second, Jimmy Dykes at shortstop and Sammy Hale at third. The Mack won 29 out of 29 exhibition games in the south. The spring series between the A's and Phillies was scheduled to open at Shibe Park today.

New Orleans, La., April 6.—Davy Bancroft was slated to go back to shortstop for the Brooklyn Robins in today's game against the Cleveland Indians. The Brooklyn infield yesterday was made up of Carey, Rosenfield and Rhief on the bases and Harvey Hendrick, an outfielder at shortstop.

Birmingham, Ala., April 6.—The Washington Senators prepared to turn the tables on the Birmingham Southern League club today and avenge yesterday's defeat. A dinky home run by Andy Moore gave Birmingham its only run. Each side made three hits.

Championship Contender

Johnnie Beck, Brainerd, who will attempt to wrest the state light-weight wrestling championship from Fred Ross at the U. C. T. auditorium Monday evening. The title bout will follow eight fast preliminaries.

WILL BE IN BEST SHAPE FOR TITLE BOUT HERE MONDAY

EIGHT PRELIMINARIES, FOUR
WRESTLING, FOUR BOXING
ON EVENING'S CARD

U. C. T. AUDITORIUM WILL BE
STAGE FOR SPORT CLASSIC;
TICKETS GOING FAST

The U. C. T. auditorium will be the scene Monday evening of one of the best wrestling and boxing cards staged in the northwest in years.

The headline event will be the Johnnie Beck-Fred Ross clash for the lightweight wrestling championship. Beck, Brainerd mat artist, is the contender.

Both men are at the stage now in training where they are ready to go on the mat for the big event. The bout will be to a finish, best two out of three falls.

Reserved seat tickets are selling at Paul M. Jones' Van's Cafe and O. A. Peterson Clothing Co. store.

The importance of the card and the interest taken in it should mean a sell out of the house.

STOCKS CONTINUE VERY IRREGULAR

New York, April 6.—(UP)—Irregularity continued to characterize stock market dealings in the final session of the week despite favorable overnight business and mercantile reviews. However, dealings were very quiet, reflecting uncertainty, which continued to prevail in speculative circles.

U. S. Steel continued firm, moving up fractionally, while Gold Dust, International Combustion, New Haven and Bethlehem firmed up sharply. On the other hand, Chrysler, Radio, International Nickel and Warner Brothers pictures were in supply.

Coppers were again heavy, American Smelting moving a point lower at 105½ and Anaconda fractionally lower at 147. Kennecott and Greene Cananea held steady around their previous closing levels.

Price movements in general were in an extremely narrow trading range and pools were reluctant to mark up the favorites in the face of the prevailing uncertainty.

Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Packard, Westinghouse and U. S. Industrial alcohol held steady around their previous closing levels, while oils and rails were supplied at concessions.

Atlanta, Ga., April 6.—(UP)—The St. Louis Cardinals remained here today for another game with the Atlanta southern league club. Hafey and Hanev starred in yesterday's victory over Atlanta, each driving out three hits.

Pays 22-Hour Penance

Red Cagle, last year's shining light of West Point's football team, is doing a 22-hour trick in his spare time on the 100-yard stretch where all A. W. O. L. hammer out their penalty. Red missed the Hoboken ferry one night, all due to Mr. Whalen's traffic laws, but the rules at West Point must be obeyed, too.
